

FUTURE FARMING RESILIENCE FUND

A smiling man with grey hair and a beard, wearing a blue and yellow plaid shirt, is holding a black and white cow calf. The calf has a white face and chest with black patches on its body. The man is looking towards the camera with a warm expression. The background is slightly blurred, suggesting an outdoor farm setting.

YOU ARE INVITED

Future Farming Resilience Fund events are being held in your area. Don't miss your chance to receive free, confidential and independent advice

The Future Farming Resilience Fund (FFRF), funded by Defra, provides free support to farmers and land managers across England to become more resilient to challenges caused by COVID-19, extreme weather and changes to agricultural support. The programme provides free access to one-to-one business and environmental sustainability advice, an online toolbox of learning resources, webinars, and regional events.

Your Regional Coordinator will introduce the next phase of the Future Farming Resilience Fund.

A farm business adviser from The Andersons Centre will discuss the current state of the UK farming industry with regards to the agricultural transition and what primary issues are affecting farmers. They will also explain how the FFRF programme can be used to help farmers with a tailored approach.

A team member from the Farming Community Network (FCN) will also speak about managing stress within the farming community and what support is available to you.
